Recycle when you mow

Do your part for the environment by recycling when you mow. Grasscycling — leaving grass clippings on the lawn — save time, landfill space and nurtures the soil, according to the Professional Lawn Care Association of America.

"Yard waste bans are in place in many areas of the country," says Michael Gaffney, PLCAA's technical resource specialist. "Grasscycling is an alternative to dumping and bagging, and enriches the soil for a healthier lawn."

Grass clippings are 85 percent water and return 20 percent of their nitrogen to the soil to feed the lawn's root system. They decompose rapidly and return nutrients to the soil with no thatch buildup. Grasscycling, a term coined by PLCAA, can be practiced year-round with most mowers.

When you mow, PLCAA recommends that you follow the one-third rule: mow often enough to cut only one-third of the grass plant in any one mowing.

For more information on Grasscycling, PLCAA offers a "Grasscycling Guide." For a free copy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: PLCAA/Grasscycling, 1000 Johnson Ferry Road, NE, Suite C-135, Marietta, GA 30068. Visit PLCAA's web site at www.plcaa.org.

Card of Thanks

Christmas in April
I would like to thank Basil Kennedy, all of the volunteer workers from various industries and merchants who donated their time and supplies to help in repairing my home recently in the Christmas in April Extravaganza.

You never know what you may run into when entering an old house. There's always hidden problems. I had broken pipes that were replaced before the bathroom could be completed. I especially like my new shower. It was difficult for me to use a bath tub due to having bad knees. The shower is so much more convenient.

The volunteers replaced badly needed broken window. I can look out now and see the birds at the window and my pretty new red hanging flowers that one of the volunteers bought for me to hang on my new porch.

The new paint job really dresses up the looks of the property. The yard was cleaned and flowers trimmed. I can see past the street, where before I couldn't see any further than the end of my sidewalk. It really looks good!

I enjoy having company during the few days they were working. Each of them was very nice and helpful. Each of them worked well together and returned to ensure completion of the job.

I was glad to be selected as the recipient for this area for the Christmas in April program. Christmas in April is a great senior citizen and low income program for our area.

I hope the local merchants and politicians will make an effort to help keep this program an ongoing event. We have good volunteer people who don't like to be recognized for their many contributions. We owe them a great deal of gratitude.

Thank you,
Mildred Lott

Record numbers open library after lightning strike

All records were broken this past Tuesday when the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County headquarters branch of the Hancock County Library System opened after closing for four days due to lightning damage to the system's catalog computer system.

More than 300 people visited the library and borrowed 1,349 items. Those same people returned or renewed 1,286 items.

"People were waiting for the doors to open," said Prima Plauche, library system director. "According to our records, Tuesday broke all previous circulation records held at this branch. The first day of preregistration for our 1997 Summer Reading Program was Tuesday. More than 80 children filled out the forms and checked out more than 450 books."

The library system is funded by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

County receives Capital Improvements Revolving Loan

Hancock County is the recipient of a $150,000 Capital Improvements Revolving Loan to renovate the Hancock Industries facility in the Port Bienville Park, Jimmy Heide, executive director of the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development (MDECD) announced.

"The department is pleased to make this capital improvements loan," said Heide. "The loan will help the community support improvements that may otherwise go unfunded."

"I want to thank Philip Moran, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and others at the local level who provided the leadership to make this project a success."

The loan is issued through the MDECD Community Services Division's Capital Improvements Revolving Loan Program. Established by the 1994 Legislature, the program provides low interest loans to incorporated municipalities and counties. Each local unit of government can borrow up to $1 million per calendar year and must demonstrate the ability to repay any loan it receives.

The loans assist in making capital improvements in the construction or repair of water and sewer facilities, construction or repair of drainage systems, railroad spurs and access roads for industrial development; improvements in fire protection; the construction of new buildings and the purchase, renovation or repair of existing buildings for economic development purposes.

Other eligible projects include construction of health care facilities; construction, purchase, renovation or repair of any building to be used as an auditorium or convention center and construction of multi-purpose facilities for tourism development.

Conservancy asks for mitigation bank

BY ED LEFONA

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the National Conservancy is prodding supervisors to establish a wetlands mitigation bank somewhere in the vast buffer zone surrounding the giant Stennis Space Center.

A presentation was made to the board Wednesday by NASA's Environmental Affairs Officer, Ron Magee, who also chairs the chamber's environmental committee. Magee was assisted in the presentation by Pat Patterson, state director of the non-profit Nature Conservancy, which has helped to establish a mitigation bank in Jackson County.

Magee told supervisors, "As you are aware, land in Hancock County is a precious commodity, and limited in use and availability."

"With Hancock County being the second fastest growing county in the state, this point is of concern to us at the Chamber."

The development of a mitigation bank is used to assist developers and even private citizens in dealing with the wetlands issue. When a development is planned that might impact wetlands, it is usually allowed to proceed providing the developer perpetually leases another wetlands area that is endangered.

The bank can be established either by the county or a private landowner, Magee told supervisors. "The more, the merrier," he said.

"The buffer zone is land that has restrictions on development anyway, so the environmental committee feels that this might be a viable location to be considered, yet there may be another site in the county that could be developed, which might prove to be a better location," said Magee.

Patterson said the Nature Conservancy five years ago worked to set aside 1,750 acres for mitigation in Jackson County, but the bank could be drawn on by any of the three coastal counties. He said the demand for mitigation land rose significantly over the past five years, and it would be best if Hancock County began thinking about establishing its own bank. The Conservancy now oversees about 250 acres donated to it above Kiln, and is nurturing that site, he said.

Patterson wanted supervisors to pay his organization's cost for surveys and appraisals that would be needed for checking out potential sites, but supervisors instead, agreed to send a letter to his Board of Directors supporting the initial plans.

Magee said establishing potential sites "was the first step" in the process, and his committee would lend assistance, along with data on endangered wetlands that has been collected by NASA.

Kidnapper sentenced

The Louisiana man who kidnapped a Diamondhead bank executive and his brother for ransom has been sentenced to more than 23 years in jail.

Under a plea arrangement, James Franklin Putnam, 27, of Pearl River, entered a guilty plea Wednesday to only one count of kidnapping. He was sentenced to serve 23 years and three months in prison and to five years probation Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Charles Pickering of Hattiesburg. By law, he must serve 85 percent of his sentence before he is eligible for parole.

Last January, Putnam broke into the Diamondhead home of John Patrick Wild, the branch manager of People's Bank in Diamondhead. He held Wild, and his brother, Thomas Stephen Wild, at gunpoint, and the next morning forced Patrick Wild to go to the bank and withdraw a still-undisclosed amount of money.

Wild said Putnam directed him to come to a Slidell hotel with the money, and threatened to kill his brother if he did not follow his instructions.

Wild delivered the money, and called law enforcement officials in Gulfport after he and his brother were released.

Agents with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, assisted St. Tammany Parish Police and other law enforcement officers in arresting Putnam at the motel, and recovered the money.

CUERVAS QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The qualified electors in the City of Bay St. Louis, especially in Council District Three, need to remember to vote on Tuesday, June 3, the general election day.

The mayor and four of the councilmen are unchallenged, while the Democratic nominee faces an independent candidate in District 3.

Still, it is important for all qualified electors to give those unchallenged a vote of confidence Tuesday.

Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

So, be sure to vote Tuesday.

Once again the Hancock County Library System conducts its Summer Reading Program at its various locations.

The big kickoffs are set for Tuesday, 1:30 p.m. at the Kiln Library, and on Thursday, June 5, 10:30 a.m. at the Waveland Library System, when Cherie Schadler, author of Welcome to Bayou Town, will bring characters to life in a musical puppet theater.

On Wednesday, June 4, 10:30 a.m., at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, Komenka, a group of dancers recognized for their dynamic and colorful performances will perform.

The Komenka, beautifully costumed dancers will perform dances from around the world.

The Summer Reading Program is a program to encourage students to read a certain number of books within a certain time period. Each participant will receive a reading record on which to record books read, and those who complete the program will receive a certificate. Students can register at any area library.

Parents and children alike, if you have not witnessed a performance of Sherie Schadler, you do not know what you are missing.

Sherie, assisted by her husband and young son, do a spectacular program. They are residents of Hancock County, and I understand sales of Welcome to Bayou continues to grow. It is a great book for a special event gift for a youngster.

It is hoped there will be standing room only at all performances for the Library's Summer Reading Program.

The end of the school years means that we receive a large volume of information on area graduates and students.

It is surprising the number of universities and colleges across America attended by local students.

Some of the volume of school-related materials will be carried in these columns to get it all in the newspaper.

We try to get all the local related school and college news in and will do so as space becomes available.

I spoke to Chuck (Red Bean) Breath of Hancock Bank Friday afternoon, and he was elated over the fact that there are some 39 participants scheduled for the June 9, Seventh Annual Red Beans & Rice Cook-Off.

The cook-off will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Casino Magic Dome, and tickets are for a donation of $6 each.

Tickets can also be purchased from any Hancock County Hancock Bank branch and are now available.

Breath, who assumed the chairmanship this year of the event, reports he is receiving great help from many people and organizations, such as Casino Magic, L.H. Hayward & Co. (Camellia Red Kidney Beans), Hancock County Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and others.

I could go a good plate of Red Beans & Rice right now, and for sure I will be awaiting the cook-off.

We will be telling you more about the cook-off as the time nears.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Improvements at Stennis

For many years, Mississippi might have been a place with tremendous potential but few prospects. That is no longer the case, as the Magnolia State's economy is now one of the healthiest in the country.

Mississippi has gained a well-deserved reputation as a place that is exciting and attractive to both the private and public sectors. One asset which is particularly attractive these days in the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant at Stennis Space Center in Bay St. Louis.

For the past six years I have been working to find new missions for this fine facility. Lately, we have had considerable interest in the facility from both private industry and the military, which means the revitalization of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant is very likely on the horizon.

One project we have recently secured is the housing of the Navy's new Southeast Human Resources Service Center at Stennis. The service center will serve as headquarters for the control of all Navy Civilian personnel for a seven-state area of the southeastern United States, consolidating oversight of the Navy's civilian personnel. The best thing about the location of the new service center at Stennis is that it could create up to 250 jobs in the area. This is certainly good economic news for the community.

An exciting possibility for the ammunition plant is the $1.5 billion Space Based Laser program. Besides potentially bringing 800 to 1,000 jobs to the community, this program is vital to our nation's missile defense efforts. Stennis is competing for final site selection with Cape Kennedy, Eglin Air Force Base and Huntsville.

The Ballistic Missile Defense Organization Site Selection Committee visited Stennis Feb. 26 and I feel very good about our chances of landing this important project. An announcement should be made by mid-March.

Another Naval move in the works is the planned relocation of a Navy SEALs unit to Stennis Space Center. The site selection has been narrowed to either Slidell or Stennis. Smart Boat Unit 22, which consists of 85 active duty SEALs and 108 Navy reserve personnel, would live and train in the area. Stennis is a perfect location for them to locate since it would provide ample work space and a rugged, natural area in which to train.

Within two weeks the Pentagon is expected to approve $15 million to initiate the Superdrag Missile program at Stennis. This anti-armor weapon system is greatly needed by our troops, particularly the Army National Guard. This project would create another 200 jobs for men and women of south Mississippi.

Stennis is also being considered for a $10 million project to develop crash-attenuated helicopter seats for our military helicopters. These seats will offer greater protection to military personnel involved in helicopter crashes. I expect a solid commitment on this by mid-March.

No longer is the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant a facility with a lot of potential but no purpose. Very soon the facility will return as a thriving source of jobs for South Mississippi. This is a good start, but I am not satisfied. I intend to keep working to bring more business and jobs to this useful and important facility.

VA nursing home care

By Donald Mauffray
Veterans Service Officer

The VA "may," but is not required to, provide nursing home care in VA or private nursing homes. This means that no veteran is entitled to nursing home care, but some veterans are eligible for such care, cost-free, if funds are available.

Nursing home care is intended for veterans who are not acutely ill and not in need of hospital care. There are basically three types of nursing home care that may be available to veterans.

First, VA Medical Centers may have specialized nursing facilities—called nursing home care units (NHCU)—designed to care for residents who require nursing care.

These can be located in a section of the VAMC or in a separate building on the medical facility's grounds.

Second, some veterans may receive community nursing home care (CNHC) in a public or private nursing home that has a contract with the VA to provide care.

Third, an eligible veteran may receive nursing home care in a state veterans' home, a facility approved by the VA. Incidentally, Mississippi now has four such homes—more than any of the other states. At least we are first in something.

Approved state veterans' homes receive federal VA aid payments, based on a set per diem rate, for the care provided to eligible veterans. The present per diem rate is $37.56. However, this will be increased to $41 per day effective June 30, 1997. This increase is necessary to pay for the increasing cost of providing nursing home care and due to the increase in the federal minimum wage.

Eligibility for cost-free nursing home care:

Any veteran entitled to cost-free hospital care and outpatient care is also eligible for cost-free nursing home care in VA nursing care units and for community nursing home care.

Some veterans may be eligible for cost-free nursing home care because their income falls below the means test threshold. Basically, any veteran who is (1) eligible for Medicaid, or (2) receiving VA pension, or (3) had an attributable income for the previous year under the threshold amount set by Congress (for 1996, $21,001 for a single veteran with no dependents) will not be charged for nursing home care.

The rules used to determine attributable income for eligibility for cost-free hospital care also apply to determinations of attributable income for cost-free nursing home care.

This is, certain income is excluded in determining attributable income, and unreimbursed medical expenses can be deducted from income. Also, veterans with a previous year's income above the threshold amount may be placed in the mandatory category in order to avoid hardship.

My next article or two to appear in this column will deal with co-payments for nursing home care. I also will touch on applications for and limitations on VA-sponsored community nursing home care.

Hubble telescope redefines infinity

The Hubble telescope is revealing celestial phenomena of colors, formations, and dimensions beyond the imaginations of science fiction writers.

Photographic coverage in the April 1997 National Geographic is sensational, if not consciousness expanding. Other presentations of incredible images from the telescope have appeared on PBS television.

NASA's "window on the universe" was launched by the shuttle Discovery in April 1990. Initially malfunctioning due to a misshapen mirror produced concern over the capabilities of the orbiting telescope.

The shuttle Endeavour came to the rescue with repairs in December 1993, enabling the Hubble to provide unprecedented clarity.

Out in space, the Hubble telescope orbits the Earth, free from the distorting effects of our multi-layered atmosphere. Planets such as Mars and Jupiter can be seen with impressive detail. More distant planets, Saturn and Neptune are sharply imaged with vivid colors.

Exploring outward from the solar system into distant recesses of space, the Hubble has revealed nebulae of fantastic shapes and extraordinary colors. These mysterious formations of gases and dust are the birthplaces of stars. Some have dimensions so vast that their length are measured in light-years.

The Hubble telescope has the ability to probe billions of years backward into time. This means that light from far distant galaxies and stars required billions of years to reach the Hubble's lenses. New opportunities are available to study early events in the evolution of the universe.

Perhaps the most astounding finding of the telescope is known as "The Hubble Deep Field." After carefully selecting a dark viewing area, seemingly devoid of stars, the telescope was focused on an area equivalent to a grain of sand seen from arm's length. A time series of exposures revealed numerous galaxies extending into infinity; a fascinating discovery in a region of space previously believed to be "empty."

The Hubble telescope is opening doorways to the cosmos where gigantic colorful nebulae, primeval galaxies, supernovas, and black holes all travel across space at velocities approaching the speed of light. Humanity can now view the Universe across incomparable distances and time, with clarity unattainable from Earth based telescopes.

Making sure we know more

Q What Mississippi university established the first laboratory school in the state and still has Mississippi's only "teacher lab," where college students work in partnership with an on-campus school while training to be teachers?

A The Demonstration School at Mississippi University for Women was established in 1907 with legislative funding as Mississippi's first "Model School." Operated jointly since 1954 with the Columbus School District for grades K-6 in a building constructed in 1929 on "The W's" campus, it is once again the state's only laboratory school. In January 1997, Demonstration Elementary was one of only three schools selected from across the country by the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory for an education conference in California, where Dem School representatives shared the secrets of their success in improving students' reading skills. In 1994, the public School Improvement Research Series spotlighted the Dem School as a national model for effective schooling practices. Just another way Mississippi Universities are making sure we know more.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

All of 17 years old, I was treated to my first exposure to beekeeping on a grand scale by Brother Frederick, Divine Word Missionary in Techny, Ill. Beehives by the score mesmerized me and the other wide-eyed novices.

Among other things, Brother Frederick routinely let innumerable bees sting him as he went about caring for the hives.

"It's good for arthritis!" he would say. "The bee venom neutralizes the body poisons which bring about arthritis."

Fifty years later, Dr. Andrew Weil appears on the cover of "Time" magazine touting the virtues of bee stings and an endless string of assorted plant, animal and psychic cures.

A journeyman named Oliver, who is now a spry and vibrant 86 years, is the hero of the bee sting story. Rheumatoid arthritis had bedeviled him since his 30s, until he put on a pair of sun-dried pajamas which gave his left knee a charge.

Slapping down in pain, he crushed a bumblebee which came tumbling out. Within a couple of days, the arthritic ache began to leave with the bee sting pain, and all swelling left in a few weeks, soon followed by Oliver's chronic pains.

There's nothing new here, of course, whether we go back to Brother Frederick or to China where all medical doctors must learn traditional medicine and then all alternative medicine. No herb, no technique is left unstudied or untried.

Granted that he is far more organized and media-oriented, Dr. Weil is merely pursuing the holistic approach which most African and many Asian doctors do routinely. You help the body, mind or soul best only when you serve them together.

Not to worry, then, that the good doctor eagerly embraces cures ranging from meditation, visualization, love, positive thinking, herbalism, hypnosis, chiropractic, acupuncture, naturopathy and osteopathy.

Predictably, a firestorm of cacophony belched forth from the mouths of numerous traditional medical doctors, labeling Weil and his tenets voodoo medicine and worse. Those doctors need to study what medical doctors are doing in China.

Using common sense, Dr. Weil teaches what we already know anyway in order to be healthy: cut back on fats, sweets, alcohol, salt and caffeine, and exercise often and vigorously. One more important ingredient: get stress out of your life.

The only apparent flaws I find in Dr. Weil's approach to food is his half-hearted attack on animal products and his prescribing 6000 mg. of vitamin C a day. Raw vegetables and fruit in good quantity more than take care of our needs.

Further, unless they are organic, vitamins and minerals are not assimilable by our body, and combine with cholesterol to form that terrible cement called plaque.

Overall, Dr. Weil does not appear to be far from the attitude and approach of Jesus himself, who did not hesitate to demand the psychic boost of faith, and who spit in the dust, forming mud which he applied to the eyes of a blind man.

Isn't the ultimate purpose and principle of a doctor to heal, to cure the sick and to prevent the healthy from becoming ill? Whatever does not hurt and may help, should be tried for the sake of the diseased, the impaired, the depressed.

God gave us doctors and nurses to keep our body, mind and soul healthy. But don't forget the manifold powers of nature.

Jesus was holistic

EVERYDAY RECIPES

.... Love, Patsy
(Patsy Powell)

Good morning, y'all. Do you like to have your cake and eat it too? Have I got a good one for you.

Ground meat was on sale and I bought plenty. I got smart and made up hamburgers and froze them for that day you come home from work and are sooooo tired or a quick weekend barbecue.

My inventive mind started to whirl MEATLOAF! I like to try different out-of-the-ordinary things. When you make meatloaf, you can do many combos of ingredients. Here are two that are very interesting and taste great.

HAMBURGER AND FRIES LOAF

Make your basic groundmeat, onion, garlic, bread-crumbs, eggs, salt and pepper to taste and press it out in a rectangle. Sprinkle grated cheese on top, the thicker the better, and place frozen french fries on top of that, and if you are daring, shake some Tony Chachere's on top of the fries.

Now start rolling and make sure the ends seal. Bake at 325 degrees for 40 minutes covered and then uncover and brown. Always let the meatloaf cool some before cutting.

Now you have your hamburger and fries without that messy grease getting all over your stove.

TEX-MEX LOAF

This recipe came from a Tex-Mex urge I had and whatever was in the cabinets.

Mix 3 pounds of groundmeat, 1 pack dry hot chili seasoning mix with onions - 1.41 oz., 3 eggs, 1 cup instant potatoes and press out into the famous rectangle. Press thinly sliced garlic into meat. Take 1 can tamales and cut into bite size pieces and cover garlic.

I didn't have cheese so I used 1/2 pack of crushed cheese bits and topped the tamales with them. Pour the sauce from the tamales over this and cover with 1/2 jar of chopped green chilis. Again, roll and make sure all ends seal.

Bake at 325 degrees for 40 min. covered and uncover and top with picante sauce and bake another 20 min. Before serving, top with sour cream and remaining green chilis and any extra picante sauce if that's what you feel like and make sure it looks pretty.

Eye appeal is half the battle in cooking. Who is more important than you — make it look good for you as well as the others who will enjoy this treat.

See you next time ... Love

USM criminal bail degree program

The University of Southern Mississippi Department of Criminal Justice has designed a degree curriculum for people who want to be professional criminal bail agents.

The Professional Bail Agents of the United States concluded an agreement with USM last year to establish a "focused curriculum" within the criminal justice major for those interested in practicing as bail agents, said Dr. William Taylor.

The criminal justice professor helped put together the curriculum, which he said is the "first of its kind in the United States."

"The curriculum is anchored on criminal law and procedure, the law of evidence, criminal investigation, public administration, economics and business administration," he said. "Ancillary coursework includes computer science and statistics, Spanish and professional writing. These, along with general education courses, lead to the bachelor of arts degree in criminal justice."

A bail bondsman is someone who guarantees that an arrested individual will appear in court at the appointed time in return for a cash or collateral payment. In a state like Mississippi, the bondsman is a private businessman, who — in order to do the job — must be familiar with law enforcement and administration as well as issues like insurance and real estate.

Taylor said PBUS is "taking the lead" in finding ways to raise standards and professionalism in the field. The organization studied criminal justice departments across the U.S. before reaching an agreement with USM.

USM's Department of Criminal Justice also is seeking to become a center of research in the field, Taylor said. A public pre-trial release program was created by the Department of Justice in the 1980s — creating what Taylor calls "bail wars" over whether public or private individuals, or organizations are better suited to implement any pre-trial release program.

"We have no interest in becoming involved in these bail wars," Taylor said. "Our focus is on designing a degree that meets the needs of those wanting to go into that line of work."

"We also have established a fund through the USM Foundation that will allow anyone who wants to contribute money to fund research on the forms of pre-trial release. Our goal is to serve the public through informed policy analysis."

USM's Department of Criminal Justice celebrates its 25th anniversary this year.

Those interested in learning more about the program may contact Taylor at (601) 266-4509.

SPORTS

Invention product of local resident

BY DWAYNE BRIDGES

Have you ever had to spend a lot of time untangling your fishing lines? Have you ever picked yourself out a loose hook dangling from your pole?

There are just a few problems that faced Waveland fisherman Curtis Colson. But Colson turned the challenges into a burgeoning business.

Colson, a long-time Waveland resident and business owner in the area, has come up with an exciting invention to solve these problems.

The Rod Hugger is a small strip made of leather with a non-stick back and a velcro strip. One can use the Rod Hugger by simply wrapping it around lures, hooks, and all fishing apparel. The Rod Hugger fastens all the objects to the pole, and they do not come free until one wants them to.

Colson came up with the idea last summer. "I wanted to spend more time fishing instead of untangling," Colson said. To his surprise, none of the local shops carried anything of the kind.

With help from his family, he decided to create the Rod Hugger. He now produces all of the items in his Waveland office. With a patent pending on the Rod Hugger in the United States, Colson has gotten plenty of recognition for his product. Colson has been the guest on 870 AM's sports talk show as well as the "Let's Talk Fishing" show on WISN in Chesapeake, La. He has also taken his product to sports shows in the Superdome and along the coast.

"I just love to fish, and the Rod Hugger allows me to save time, and catch more fish," Colson said.

Colson is the president of his own company, Pappie Inc., which produces all of the Rod Hugger items. He has five different sizes of Rod Huggers ranging from 1 inch by 1 inch, all the way to one large enough to wrap around a baseball bat.

For fishing lovers, the Rod Hugger will be an easy and safe way of getting their equipment together, Colson said. He added it is a "simple idea with great potential." The Pappie Inc., slogan may sum up the Rod Hugger: "Tackle up not Tangle up."

For product information and prices, call 467-6340.

Litter Act amended

The Marine Litter Act of 1989 has been amended to include the posting on all vessels of a warning that it is unlawful to dispose of marine litter into the marine waters of Mississippi, according to the Department of Marine Resources' Executive Director Glade Woods.

Vessels of all sizes, both commercial and recreational, must have on board a clearly marked closed container for the proper disposal of waste, trash and other garbage according to Ordinance 10,003 passed by the Commission on Marine Resources.

This ordinance prohibits the disposal of plastics and other garbage in marine waters and requires disposal facilities at marinas.

Stickers must be clearly posted on board to insure that all crew members and passengers are aware of Mississippi's Marine Litter Ordinance.

Sea Wolves release 97-98 season schedule

The Mississippi Sea Wolves have released their official schedule for the 1997-98 East Coast Hockey League season. Seventy games are again scheduled for the Sea Wolves' second season with 35 of those games being played in their home arena, the Mississippi Coast Coliseum in Biloxi.

With the addition of two new expansion franchises joining the League in 1997 (New Orleans Brass & Chesapeake Icebreakers) the ECHL is being divided into two conferences comprised of four divisions.

The Mississippi Sea Wolves will compete in the Southwest Division of Conference B, which happens to be one of the largest divisions in the ECHL with se-van teams. ECHL teams competing in the Southwest Division include the Baton Rouge Kingfish, Birmingham Bulls, Louisiana IceGators, Mississippi Sea Wolves, Mobile Mysticks, New Orleans Brass and the Pensacola Ice Pilots.

The Sea Wolves will again open their season at home against the Pensacola Ice Pilots on Thursday, Oct. 16. Other promotional nights include special games on Halloween Night, Thanksgiving Day, Valentine's Day and St. Patrick's Day.

The week before Christmas the Sea Wolves will be playing three home games. Overall, the Sea Wolves will play 13 home games on Friday, 10 home games on Tuesday, seven home games on Saturday, two home games on Thursday and Sunday, and one home game on Wednesday. No games are scheduled to be played on Monday nights.

The 1997-98 season will again include heated rivalries against the Louisiana Ice Gators, the Mobile Mysticks, the Baton Rouge Kingfish, the Birmingham Bulls, and the Pensacola Ice Pilots with eight games (four home and four away) scheduled against each one of these teams.

The New Orleans Brass will be another team facing an eight-game series against the Sea Wolves. A majority of the other games will be played against opponents in the Southeast Division, starting off with two games against the defending Kelly Cup Champion South Carolina Stingrays.

Additional opponents include Jacksonville, Tallahassee, Raleigh, Charlotte and Pee Dee (Florence, S.C.). The only two games being played outside of the South will be against Chesapeake in the Northeast Division.

Start times for these games have not yet been determined by the Sea Wolves organization.

The Mississippi Sea Wolves were the only expansion franchise to join the ECHL last year finishing with a 34-26-10 record and a trip to the ECHL first round playoffs. The Sea Wolves ranked fifth overall in attendance out of 23 teams.

Season tickets are on sale now at the Sea Wolves front office in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum, (601) 388-6151.

Tryouts set for U-12, Division II

Tryouts for a Division II U-12 Boys team affiliated with Bay Area Youth Soccer will be held at the Seminary field beginning Tuesday, June 17. Players born between Aug. 1, 1985 and July 31, 1987 are eligible to try out.

The tryouts will be made up of three phases. Each participant should attend each of the sessions in order to benefit from a full evaluation. Tryout dates are as follows:

Tuesday, June 17, 2-3 p.m.
Thursday, June 19, 2-3 p.m.
Saturday, June 21, 2-3 p.m.

Registration will take place 20 minutes prior to the first tryout date. A registration fee of $40 will be collected at that time. Participants must bring a #4 ball, a water jug, both a white and dark t-shirt, shin guards and cleats.

An article published in the most recent edition of "Mississippi In Touch" outlines the proposed change to the current Division II guidelines. Basiccally, Division II is a step up in competition from Recreational soccer, yet not as demanding as Select.

Although tryouts are being held now, the final decision as to which division the squad will compete under will depend on the vote of the general membership at the MYSA annual general meeting, which will be held in July. If the state does not approve the changes to the current Division II policies, the coach and parents will decide the team's future.

Any questions regarding the team, these tryouts, or Division II in general, should be directed to Andy Kivian, who will be coaching the squad, at 466-2600.

Anyone wishing to register prior to the tryouts may do so also by contacting him. If you are unable to get in touch with Kivian, Lori Lewis has agreed to be a secondary contact at 467-4845.

The Grammy-nominated group has been featured on recordings by Cindi Lauper and Bob Dylan as well as performed a release on Paul Simon's multi-platinum album, "Graceland."

Rockin' Dopsie Jr. and the Zydeco Twisters have played at President Clinton's 50th birthday celebration, the Smithsonian Institute, the ShowWest Awards for Coca-Cola and TNT at Las Vegas' MGM Grand.

The Billfish Classic will be Friday, June 13 and Saturday, June 14. Over 300 deep-sea fishing anglers will compete for $375,000 in cash prizes. The Blue Marlin, Tuna, Dolphin and Wahoo will be weighed and displayed from 4-11 p.m. on Friday and 4-10 p.m. on Saturday.

Clark said he is also out on the streets campaigning, trying to make contact with voters.

"I am doing a little of everything," he said. "She (Lamprey) has a lot of advertising, I go person to person."

This is the first time Clark's name will appear on the ballot since he is running as an independent candidate. He said he entered the race because he did not think that Ward received adequate representation.

"People were shocked, but they did not give people in Ward (3) what I call representation," Clark said.

"We would have to extend the school day for some middle school students," Bennett said. Commission attorney Robert Gadin said any project eventually brought into Stennis must be big enough to buy out the school. This (the new middle school) makes it that much more difficult.

"Every time we bring a project in, it puts tax dollars into your coffers," he told school board members. "You get big dollars."

Bennett said the school board has "scaled back" the middle school's original plans, and that another cutback totaling several million dollars would be difficult.

Board member Larry Peterson said the financial strain would be less if Wellman gives up the money on (the company's) $300 million investment. They are shorting us $800,000 a year for the next 10 years. (Part of the Wellman incentive package included a 10-year tax reduction.)

Walters admitted a "full-blown" marketing plan is not in place for Stennis airport, but the Commission is attempting to raise the necessary $100,000-$150,000 to develop one.

"We are doing it a step at a time," he said.

"We have to deal in reality," Bennett said. "We can't deal with it."

The dispute is another chapter in the long history of the two agencies that originally began 10 years ago when the school district was able to purchase the property where the high school now stands. The P&H had expressed interest in the property since it sits nearly adjacent to the airport, but the district secured the property and moved forward with construction plans.

A vo-tech center and tech-prep center have been added, as well as a football stadium and baseball field.

P&H officials have had some talks with NASA officials about allowing construction on the western side of Stennis which sits in the buffer zone. But no formal decision has been reached.

"It is our position the high school should never have been put there in the first place," Walters said. "An airport and a school are not compatible. It's just not safe."

"It's a bit of a problem," he said of the land feud. "We went to (the board) with our hat in our hand. We hope to reach a middle ground."

Walters said the problem must be remedied before any serious marketing of Stennis can begin because of the school's proximity to the airport. He said the school presents a problem "even to carry out a portion of our future plans."

If traffic were to increase at the airport, Walters said at times the students "wouldn't even be able to hear the teachers."

"We heard the same argument 10 years ago," said Bennett, adding that concrete plans for the airport would have helped the board make a better decision.

Currently, the airport is utilized by private aircraft. At one time, both Casino Magic and the Jubilee Casino were flying in charter jets. However, that business dried up two years ago, and all but two of the airport's employees have been laid off.

On the bright side, however, the airport has been the recipient of several FAA grants over the last year, including the latest one that will pay for 75 percent of the costs of installing a sophisticated runway approach lighting system and an automated weather reporting station.

An FAA grant also paid for a new runway lighting system last year.

Officials from both agencies blamed a lack of communication for the current impasse.

"We had no knowledge of your plans to buy the property," Walters told Bennett.

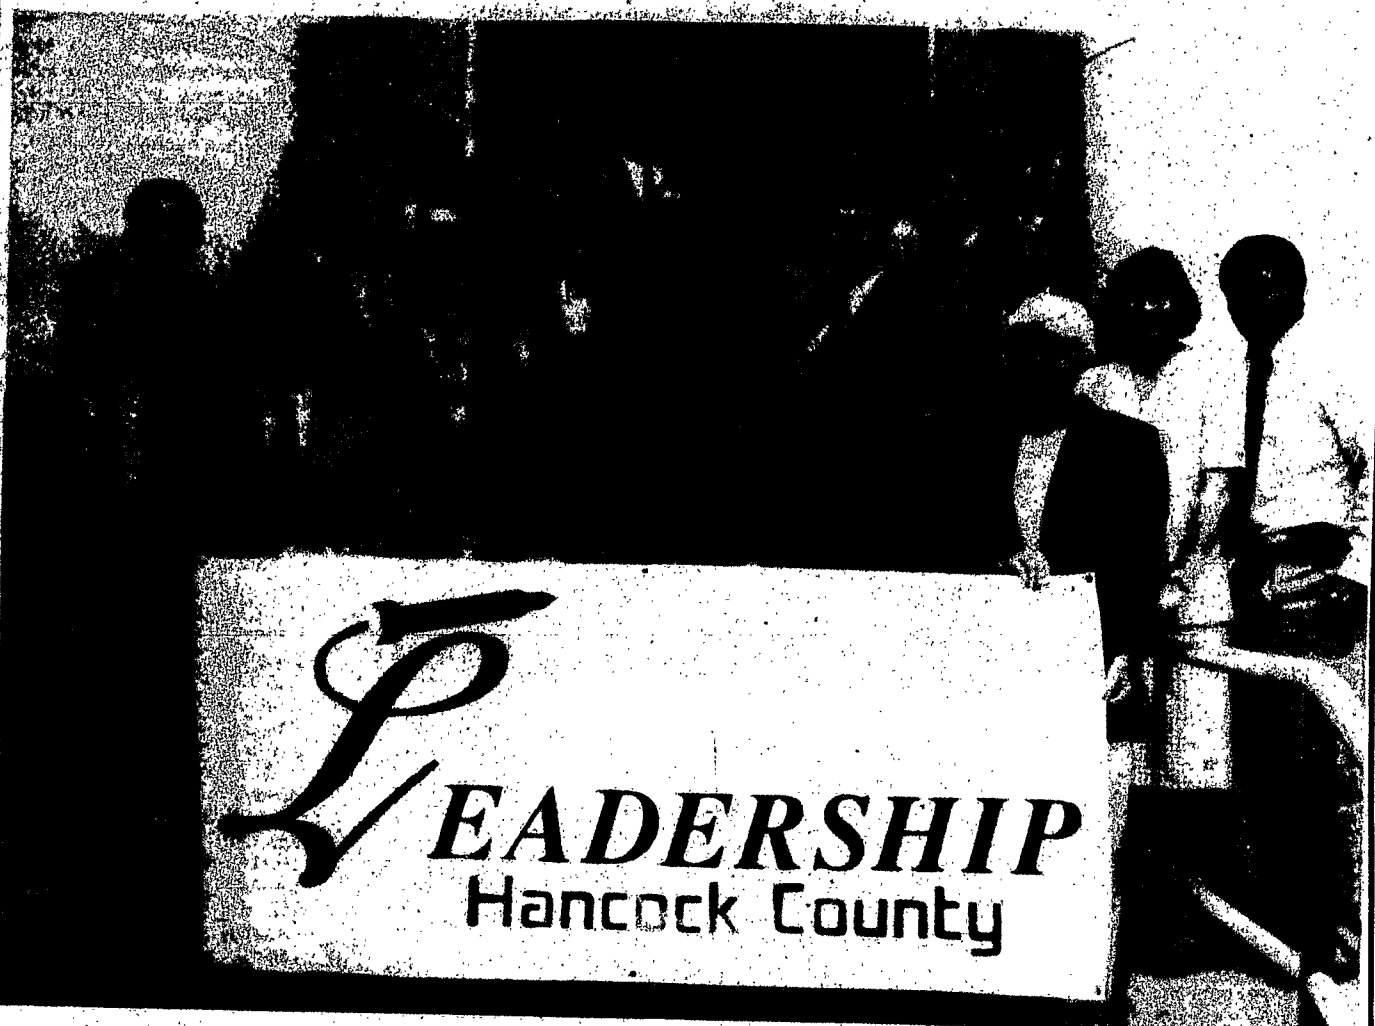

Bennett said Friday the school district was unaware of any plans to expand the airport.

"Had we known before March (when the district adopted the bond resolution) we could have accommodated the problem then," she said.

Officials are hoping to attract a large air freight carrier to relocate at Stennis. Walters added that the Wellman construction and other possible expansion at Port Bienville Industrial Park would also lead to increased air traffic at Stennis.

But he reiterated that a solution with the school board must first be negotiated.

St. Tammany Parish deputies arrested Bridgette M. Pitts, 42, of Slidell at her home Tuesday on a warrant based on charges in an indictment handed down Monday. She was booked on two counts of false pretense and released after posting $5,000 bond, and is expected to be arraigned this week in Hancock County Circuit Court.

Pitts is accused of checking Melissa Lockwood, then 17, into the Hancock Medical Center last January under the name of her daughter, Bridgett Pitts, who also is 17. Authorities contend the ruse was used so the elder Pitts insurance would pay for the baby's birth.

Authorities allege that days later the elder Pitts convinced Lockwood to sign an "act of surrender" to give the baby up for adoption, then sold the baby girl to Mary and Gary Prevette of Chesapeake, Va.

St. Tammany authorities said Gary Prevette flew into New Orleans International Airport to pick up the child.

The deal went sour six months after the alleged sale when Lockwood told her parents about the birth.

On March 25, following an investigation, both Pitts were booked in St. Tammany Parish with illegal sale of a minor child. The elder Pitts was free under $50,000 bond until she was arrested again Tuesday on the Mississippi charges.

Bay St. Louis Detective Kurt Raymond said the elder Pitts was indicted on two counts of false pretense—one involving the bill from the hospital and for another bill submitted by the doctor who delivered the baby.

He said Mississippi has a law on the books under which she could be prosecuted for insurance fraud, "but, what she actually did was false pretense," he said.

When the baby was born, she was issued a birth certificate listing the infant's name as Brianna Angelique Pitts, the mother as Bridgett Pitts and the father as unknown, records show.

The child is now 16 months old, and a Virginia judge has given the Prevettes temporary custody. But, Lockwood's parents, Lisa and Mark Lockwood, have appealed, saying they want custody of their grandchild and will help their daughter raise her.

Pitts allegedly ran Adoptive Parent Services, but Louisiana authorities say she is not registered in the state as an adoption agency.

Reunion

The class of '67 was the first to graduate from the present location on Blue Meadow Road. The class transferred from what is now Bay Middle School during the Christmas break.

"As a class most of our memories are in 'old Bay High School,'" said Sandra Ladner Rhodes, a member of the class. "The new school was beautiful, it accommodated all of our needs, but it just didn't seem like home."

There were 95 students in that 1967 class and many of them live in the area today.

Laura Piazza Griffith works for the Bay St. Louis Building Inspector, although she moved away in 1970, only to return in 1986.

Griffith estimates about 75% of the class moved away, but 50% of those have since returned.

Despite the comings and goings, Rhodes said most former classmates have managed to keep in touch.

"We probably had one of the closest classes," Rhodes said. "We were all friends, there were no little clicks."

That sentiment is echoed by another class member Jimmy Loiacano, a lifelong resident of the city, who heads up the city's Parks and Beautification Department.

"I remember the friendliness of everyone," Loiacano said. "Everyone was friends with everyone."

Griffith transferred her junior year from a local Catholic school and said she remembers having to make some adjustments in the new school.

"(The students) laughed at me because when a teacher walked in the room, I stood up," she laughed, referring to a practice from the Catholic schools.

Of the four 1967 Senior Class Officers, two live in the area. Class treasurer Freddie Breland lives in Waveland, and class treasurer Kay Manasco, now lives in Diamondhead.

Class vice-president Don Favre lives in Arizona. Stephen Davis, class president, is one of four members of the class who are deceased.

This will mark the fifth reunion of the class and 30 years understandably brings change.

Rhodes said perhaps the most obvious changes are the increases in both gray hair and weight.

"We got our letters (for the reunion) out late and one classmate said, 'Look, I don't have enough time to do liposuction,'" Griffith laughed.

The other changes may be in the school itself, according to the former students.

A glance through the 1967 yearbook shows photos of clean cut boys, and girls with Mary Tyler Moore style flip-up hairdos. The book is devoted to Mrs. Verna Mae Ladner, an English teacher.

"Each year the yearbook was devoted to a different faculty member or someone who showed a love and devotion to the school," explained Griffith who served on the yearbook staff her senior year.

That is just one of several traditions which have died over the years, agreed Griffith and Rhodes.

"When we were there our school meant something to us. We respected our teachers and administrators and the facility," Rhodes said. "When I came back 20 years later and saw the bathrooms and how they were written on, it was a very sad experience."

Signs of the times show up in schools these days too.

"(In 1967) the police didn't live (at school) and the principal did not have a walkie-talkie," said Griffith.

"If you got into trouble, your family knew before you got home," she laughed. "You're talking about a little town."

Time marches on, but Griffith said she would like to give students today at least a little of what she appreciates from the Class of 1967.

"We wish we could instill the values we learned from teachers and parents 30 years ago in the kids today," she said.

The reunion will be held June 6-8 beginning with a get together at Dock of the Bay Friday night. For more information call Rhodes at 467-1690 or Griffith at 467-4896.

Spansel wins scholarship

The Waveland Wal-Mart store associates are helping a local high school senior realize a dream by awarding a $1,000 scholarship.

Kenneth Spansel recently received a scholarship as part of the Sam Walton Community Leader Award program, sponsored by the Wal-Mart Foundation of Wal-Mart Stores Inc.

This year over 2,000 scholarships totaling over $2 million are being awarded to deserving students in Wal-Mart communities across the country.

Spansel, a senior at Bay High School, received the award based on his strong academic performance and involvement in school and community activities.

Applications were reviewed by a team of qualified judges, consisting of local business and community leaders who are not affiliated with the scholarship.

"A college education is so critical to success and opportunity in life. We like to reward students who choose to excel and move forward with their educational goals," said store manager Ray Cox.

Boys and Girls Clubs of America.

The winning program, called "Fine Arts Program," is designed to stimulate club members' creativity and help them develop an appreciation for the arts. The young people receive basic instruction in such areas as drawing, painting, pottery and sculpture design, and graphic arts.

Activities have included painting the view seen from the front porch of the club's activity center and visiting museums, studios and art galleries.

A highlight of the program was the creation of a large wall mural depicting a group of smiling kids, a local landmark and a pair of hands shaking in tribute to the Boys and Girls Club logo.

Many of the young people's creations have also been featured at art shows, galleries and local businesses. One member's piece was sold for $575 at an auction.

The Honor Awards for Program Excellence, sponsored by the Metropolitan Life Foundation, will be presented at Boys and Girls Clubs of America's 19th Annual National Conference in Atlanta, April 28.

Boys and Girls Clubs of America comprises a national network of 1,850 neighborhood-based facilities serving some 2.6 million young people, primarily from disadvantaged circumstances.

USMGC program revs up new college careers

Wayne Levoy of Ocean Springs feels like he's back in the driver's seat when it comes to controlling his career future.

Levoy, now a student at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast, wants to be a high school history teacher. And because he was eligible for USMGC's Test-Drive-a-Degree program, he got a little extra bonus in getting started: A free course.

"I had heard about the (Test Drive) program, but I didn't realize it would apply to me," said Levoy. "That was an added plus when I went to register and they told me I was eligible."

USMGC's Test-Drive-a-Degree Program — now a year old — has attracted more than 100 individuals to USMGC to return to school and seek a degree. The program offers a free course to students who have a minimum number of college credit hours, a "C" average overall and have not enrolled in a college course in the past three years.

Test Drive began in the summer semester 1996, when 30 students met the qualifications and took a free course as a way to "ease their way back into college," said Shelia White, academic and public relations specialist at USMGC.

"Taking a Test-Drive course helps a lot of students see what kind of time and other commitments they will need to return to school," said White. "It also brings back the reality of research and homework. We felt like if we could ease that process a little by waiving the tuition for the first course they take, it might make it possible for more to take that first step and get back in school."

For Julia Parker, also of Ocean Springs, the free course allowed her the chance to take an extra course, and jump-start her plans to complete a degree and earn her teacher's certification.

"I have always said I was going to go back and get certified," said Parker, who has worked as a teacher's assistant in the Ocean Springs School District for 12 years.

"When I finally decided I was going to do it, I was ready to register for as many classes as I could so I could get as many hours as possible done in the summer. The Test-Drive program made it so I could take an extra course without the financial strings attached."

Parker said the availability of classes at the USM Center on the Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College campus in Gautier also helped her stick with the program.

White said USMGC is continuing to work on expanding courses available at the Jackson County campus either via Interactive Video Network from Gulf Park or staffed by professors at the Gautier campus. Parker will be a senior when the summer 1997 semester rolls around.

"I'm just thankful it was available," she said.

For information on USMGC's Test Drive-a-Degree Program, call (601) 863-6691 in Harrison County; or (800) 488-0742 in Hancock County.

4B-THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1997

Smithsonian Folk Festival to feature Mississippi Delta

Where can one experience the smell of catfish frying, pulsing blues rhythms spilling out from a juke joint, tall tales of hunters and fishermen, yarns about the exploits of crop dusters, a jubilant shouts of gospel choirs?

The Mississippi Delta, of course. But for two weeks this summer, more than a million visitors will enjoy these Delta experiences on the National Mall in Washington, D.C.

The Smithsonian Institution brings homes, rivers, fields, churches and juke joints of the Mississippi Delta, a deep wellspring of a distinctively American culture, to the Festival of American Folklife, June 25-29 and July 2-6.

"The Mississippi Delta has a hold on our collective imagination," notes Betsy Bradley, executive director of the Mississippi Arts Commission.

"It's a region that has produced many, many artists of importance to our state and to the nation. The artists taking part in the festival are some of the Mississippians who ensure that this tradition of excellence continues."

To introduce visitors to the distinctive traditions that are singular to the Delta, the festival program will take a look at work, play, home and worship in the Delta, a region that encompasses many of the counties bordering the Mississippi River in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Visitors to the festival can hear the stories of cotton growers, crop dusters, rivermen and catfish farmers. Hunters and fishermen will tell about game they have caught and "the one that got away" at a replica of a hunting camp. Cooks, gardeners, quilters and flower arrangers will share prized recipes and homemaking traditions. Musicians and singers will represent blues, jazz, rockabilly and gospel, all musical styles deep rooted in the Delta.

Nearly 60 Mississippi artists will appear at the festival, including acoustic bluesman Eddie Cusic of Greenville, Jackson's Sweet Miss Coffy and the Mississippi Burnin' Blues Revue and net makers Tom and Penny Morris of Yazoo City.

Senator Thad Cochran, a regent of the Smithsonian Institution and Mississippi's First Lady, Pat Fordice, will participate in the opening ceremonies June 25.

The festival is a great place to spend a day learning, listening, eating and dancing, but Mississippians will see more lasting benefits, as well. On the Mall, recordings by Mississippi artists and the work of participating craftspeople will be on sale. Food vendors will offer typical Delta menus such as catfish, barbecue or hot tamales.

Back in Mississippi, the state will experience a boost in tourism, as folks who have had a taste of the Delta in D.C. head south to experience the real thing. States previously featured report that tourism has increased by as much as 33 percent as a direct result of the festival.

Plans are underway to remount the festival in Greenville in May of 1998, further increasing the event's tourism potential.

Festival demonstrations and performances take place daily from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Each evening at 5:30, festival performers will play for a dance party, which will be followed by a concert from 7-9 (except for July 4).

The Mississippi Delta program is supported by the Mississippi Band of Choctaw Indians, the Mississippi Arts Commission, and the Recording Industries Music Performance Trust Funds.

browse among the thousands of items on display. Many dealers will offer free verbal appraisals of collectibles.

The "Word" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow, Box 305, Searcy, MS 39369

The Bible makes a distinction between faith that leads to salvation and faith which is useless and dead. Unfortunately, too many people today have this dead faith. The same was true in Jesus' day. "Many believed in His name, beholding His signs which He was doing. But Jesus, on His part, was not entrusting Himself to them, for He knew all men" (John 2:24-25). Jesus did not trust certain people. Their faith was superficial. When Jesus demanded their obedience, they departed. "Faith without works is dead" (James 2:26).

James 2:19 compares the faith of such people with the faith of demons. "You believe that God is one. You do well; the demons believe, and shudder." Yes, demons have a kind of faith. However, faith like the faith of unclean spirits will not take you to heaven. Such faith is not derived from the Spirit of God. It is a faith rooted in our own feeble abilities. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" (John 3:6). Saving faith comes from God when we hear God's Word in the Bible. "For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8). "Faith comes from hearing, and hearing by the word of Christ" (Romans 10:17).
